BAKER, AS HE RETIRES, PRAISES CITIZEN SOLDIERS OF AMERICA

Can't Say Who Won War But U. S. Did Its Share—Must Keep Army at High Efficiency To Live In World as It is While We Try to Make It Better.

(Copyright, 1921, by International News Service, Inc.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 1.—Newton D. Baker, who, as secretary of war during the recent world conflict, commanded the greatest army ever raised in America, believes there is no answer to the much mooted question, "Who won the war?"

Speaking on that subject today in an interview which covered many phases of his work as head of the war department, the secretary said:

"It is perfectly idle to talk about who won the war. Many nations bent their united efforts to accomplish it, but America's effort is one in which all Americans can take pride."

The entrance of America into the war, the secretary said, stimulated the morale of our allies, who were worn and weary with years of continuous fighting; it sustained the financial situation and the ideals of America were powerful in breaking the morale of the enemy.

"In addition to this," he continued, "the actual military operations conducted by the American army were on a scale far beyond the worst fears of our enemies and far above the highest hopes of our friends and in the final battles from July, 1918, to the end, the American army fought its way with brilliant success and contributed equally with other armies to the military victory."

Although Secretary Baker has never advocated a huge standing army peace time, the experiences of the world war have convinced him of the fallacy of implication contained in the assertion that America can spring into arms overnight. He has great faith in the courage, efficiency and national aptitude for military training of the average young American, but he believes there must be a nucleus of highly trained professional soldiers of sufficient numerical strength to hold the country until an adequate force can be assembled.

"Wars are sudden and on a very much more tremendous scale than ever in history," he said.
"There must be at least enough preparation to maintain the integrity of the country against any attempt to invade it and to hold off the enemy until an adequate mobilization of men and material can be made."

From 1776 to 1920, Mr. Baker pointed out, the United States, the most peace loving of the great powers of the world, has been engaged in major domestic or foreign wars about one out of every four years and the military powers of the United States has been in active use in war or military operations of some kind about three out of every four years.

"It is apparent, therefore," he said, "that while we do not need a great standing army, we must live into the world as it is while we struggle to make it what it should be and we must have a body of trained men, large enough in numbers to be an effective working model upon which great armies can be swiftly built in the event of emergency."

"The army as fixed by congress is somewhat too small for the most efficient training, the secretary asserted. He agrees with Secretary Daniels that the navy must be at its best when war begins but makes no such claim for the army. He merely insists that it must be good enough and strong enough to hold as enemy in abeyance and be sufficient in size and development to grow rapidly and effectively."

As for materials, there should be an adequate reserve in proportion to the time required for their creation. This applies particularly to such weapons as coast defense guns, field cannon, machine guns and airplanes. There need be no great reserve of materials used in great quantities in ordinary industry. As for example, motor trucks and automobiles.

Whether or not a standing army comprising a separate caste and class apart from the life of the nation is dangerous depends upon a variety of considerations, said the secretary, but that it is relatively simple to see. Our great army is in the war was strong because it was part of the whole people of the United States in fresh and constant contact with the thoughts and feelings of the civil service from which it had come.

Secretary Baker differs from the view taken by Mr. G. M. Mitchell of the Air Service, who recently told a congressional committee the United States should have a single, united air service.

"What part will the airplane play in the next war?" Baker was asked.
"A tremendously important part," he replied. "Its development is of primary importance from a military point of view. It is one which is developed in harmony with the use of other weapons and military armaments ought to be a part of the arm and not a separate arm."

The secretary stated he did not believe the airplane would displace the present principal weapons of the war or army.

"Do you believe, Mr. Secretary, that the use of gas in warfare should continue?"

"In view of the fact that the use of gas is not to render itself into an attack on civilian populations," he replied. "It seems altogether likely that the nations of the world will eventually agree to limit, if not prohibit, its employment. A great civilized country like the United States, however, should always be prepared to defend itself against the barbarous misuse of this or any other weapon."

Replying to a question as to whether the general staff should continue in its present form, Mr. Baker said:

"The general staff as now organized is the best form of army administration we have yet had."
"What have you to say to the suggestion that it is 'Prussian' in spirit?"

"I have never discovered a 'Prussian' spirit in the general staff and I do not believe such a spirit exists," he said.

"Mr. Secretary, it has been charged that there are considerable numbers of prisoners in prisons and disciplinary barracks for purely military offenses, and that the function of granting clemency has been placed in the hands of the general staff, which is purely administrative, instead of being left with the judge advocate general's department, where benefit might be had of the opinions of trained penologists."

"It is true," Mr. Baker replied.
"The administration of military prisons is in the hands of the adjutant general but it was placed there by act of congress. I don't believe it ought to be there, nor do I believe it should be under the judge advocate general. I believe there should be a separate prison section, having no other function than the handling of these matters."

Secretary Baker paid a high tribute to the work of reserve officers in the war. He gave full credit to Major General Leonard Wood, as the originator of the "Plattsburg idea," the reserve officers' training camp idea, is most excellent one and should not be abandoned," he said.

"The young men of America who were trained at Plattsburg and in similar camps played an enormously important part in the war. The idea came from General Wood. It was a most constructive forward-looking suggestion."

"Mr. Secretary, your colleague, Secretary Daniels, has gone on record as favoring the bridging of the gap between officers and enlisted men. What do you think of the contention that 'Prussianism' or 'Iron discipline' is necessary in an army?"

"There must, of course, be discipline if an army is to be an efficient fighting machine and not a mob," Mr. Baker replied.

"Officers can not establish relations with the men which would lay them open to charges of favoring or petting."

"There is no lack of democracy in the American army today, however.
At any army dance one may see officers, enlisted men and civilians meeting on a footing of equality and all enjoying themselves. The introduction of the hostess house into army posts and camps tends to improve social conditions and promote a better understanding between officers and enlisted men."

"The recreational and educational opportunities which the army now affords have also done much in this regard. Men who are interested in such serious things as education and self improvement don't have time to fret about questions of social prestige."

Secretary Baker is convinced that the opportunity for education and recreation is largely responsible for the great increase in applications for enlistment which marked the closing months of the year 1920.

"The educational opportunity afforded by the army have been accepted seriously by the soldier, the secretary said. "They are, of course, purely voluntary. I have no doubt that the time will come, and that speedily, when the peace time army of the United States will be throughout an educational institution from which men will graduate at the termination of their enlistment better equipped to enter civilian pursuits and with a larger and firmer grasp on citizenship, with its responsibilities and privileges."

Such a system removes from a peace time army the reproach of wasted time. It gives to life in the army an immediate practical and useful purpose without at all interfering with the defensive purposes for which the army is maintained and it makes of the soldier a healthy, useful and trained citizen."

APPEALS ARGUED IN COUNTY COURT

Reversal in Ronk Conviction—Waters Raises Question of Whether He Was Convicted as Second Offender.

Appeals from judgments of conviction in eleven cases were heard by County Judge Joseph M. Fowler at the court house Monday, the January term of county court having been adjourned until then for that purpose. In all the cases, District Attorney Traver appeared for The People; the defendants were represented by various counsel.

Consent to Reversal.
In the case of The People against Edward Ronk, convicted of assault in the third degree before Justice Murray of the town of Shawangunk, on December 14, 1920, District Attorney Traver consented to reversal of the judgment on the ground that the justice kept no minutes of the testimony taken at the trial. William D. Brinnier, Jr., appeared for the defendant.

Moore Case Adjourned.
The case of The People against William J. Moore was argued. Moore was convicted before Justice of the Peace Voss of the town of Shandaken on July 18, 1920, of petit larceny.
The question involved in the appeal is whether the defendant was informed of his legal rights and the return of the justice was attacked by William D. Brinnier, Jr., counsel for Moore, on the ground that he was not informed of such rights. The court held that the return could not be attacked by affidavit, and allowed the case to be adjourned until Wednesday to enable the defendant to apply for an amended return.

Appeal Never Perfected.
Argument was had in the case of The People against Lewis Satterlee, who was convicted of juvenile delinquency in the town of Siliadunk on May 7, 1919, in breaking in a store.
District Attorney Traver moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that five terms of court had passed without the defendant having brought on his appeal to be heard, and that no affidavits on which the appeal has been allowed had been served on the justice of the peace before whom the conviction was had.
Judge Fowler said he would take this in consideration and also would decide whether a magistrate can be compelled by an order nunc pro tunc to file a return. William D. Brinnier, Jr., appeared for Satterlee.

No Jail Alternative.
In the case of The People against Mandy Newman, convicted on October 5, 1920, before Police Justice Fitzgerald of Ellenville of petit larceny, in having stolen a $5 bill, the defendant complained that the justice had imposed only a fine of $15 without the alternative of serving a jail sentence, and also that the cross-examination of the defendant by counsel for The People was illegal.
District Attorney Traver claimed the justice had performed a favor to the defendant by not imposing a jail sentence and denied that the cross-examination was anything but legal.
Decision was reserved.

Bans and Milk Disappeared.
The case of The People against Frank Schermerhorn was also argued. He was convicted of petit larceny in the city court of this city on March 16, 1920. Two boys besides Schermerhorn were arrested for stealing buns and milk which had been delivered at houses along Van Buren street. One of the boys testified against him, and it is contended that testimony of an accomplice without corroboration is not admissible. District Attorney Traver claimed that the evidence showed conspiracy among the boys to make a raid on all the houses along the street after the buns and milk had been delivered and was inadmissible. Decision was reserved. John M. Cashin for Schermerhorn.

Dispute Over Return.
In the case of The People against Hyman Feld, convicted of petit larceny before Justice of the Peace Noddy at Ellenville on December 22, 1919, Henry Klein, counsel for the defendant, claimed the return made by the justice does not show that Feld was informed of his legal rights.
This was disputed by District Attorney Traver, who claimed also that the court was bound by the return.
Decision was reserved.

Officer's Appeal Dismissed.
In the case of The People against William Oliver, convicted of petit larceny before Justice of the Peace T. Edward Dutton at Highland on September 12, 1919, District Attorney Traver moved for the dismissal of the appeal on the ground that it had not been prosecuted, that he had served notice of argument on the defendant's attorney but there was no appearance on his part of the part of the defendant. Seventeen terms of court have passed since the appeal was taken, during all of which time the defendant never has moved to have his appeal heard. The motion was granted.
Galen C. Bohn of Poughkeepsie is attorney for Oliver.

Not Enough Evidence, He Says.
In the case of The People against Thomas Shon, convicted of the petite larceny of this city on July 2, 1919, of count in the third degree, and convicted to pay a fine of $25, which he did under protest, the defendant claimed there was not sufficient evidence to sustain his conviction. The complainant having been unable to state that Shon had struck him, but he thought Shon had kicked him when he was trying on the ground. Peter Malla was counsel on the same charge but disappeared. After another case against Malla was disposed of at the January term of court, he was arrested on the same charge but it was dismissed. Judge Fowler reserved decision. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for Shea.

Did Waters Use Force?
The case of The People against Francis A. Waters, Jr., convicted of assault in the third degree in the city court of this city on January 13, 1920, was argued. Waters claimed that the boy on whose complaint he was arrested was annoying him and disturbing the work of harvesting ice on his pond, and that the assault, if there was any, was justified. He claims, however, that the conviction was not justified by the evidence and the question involved is the amount of force used by Waters in admonishing the boy.
The People contend that in ejecting the boy from the pond, there was no evidence to show that the boy was a trespasser and no proof was offered to show that Waters was the owner of the pond or had a right to possession of it. It is also contended that Waters used more force than was necessary because although the boy was only eight years old he had knocked him down, kicked him and then broke his sled by jumping on it. Decision was reserved. Andrew J. Cook argued the case for Waters and District Attorney Traver for The People. The fine imposed on Waters, which he paid under protest, was $50.

Was Waters Second Offender.
The appeal taken by Waters from the judgment of conviction for violation of the traffic law in the city court of this city on September 5, 1919, for which he was fined $25 was also argued by Mr. Cook for Waters and District Attorney Traver for the defendant. Waters claims he was convicted and sentenced as a second offender, whereas his first offense for violating the traffic law was reversed by the county court on appeal. It was claimed by the police that in turning in John street from Wall street, Waters passed with his automobile in the left of the iron standard around which all vehicles are required to pass to the right.
The People contend that he never
was charged as a second offender, but that if the judgment of the city court was erroneous, the county court has the right on appeal to render the judgment which the city court should have imposed. Decision was reserved.

Papers Lost Account of Delay.
The case of the people against William Flanagan, convicted of the petit larceny before Justice of the Peace of the town of Ulster on November 22, 1917, also was argued. District Attorney Traver moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that it had not been prosecuted by the defendant, thirteen terms of county court having passed since the appeal was taken, and also on the ground that no copies of the affidavits on which the appeal had been allowed ever had been served on the justice, as required by law. On account of this failure, the return of the justice which is supposed to be filed within five days, never had been filed and an affidavit was filed by Justice Flanagan that he could not now file a return because the papers had been lost. Decision was reserved. Kenneth H. Fennel appeared for the defendant, and District Attorney Traver for The People.

STORES TO COOPERATE IN BRILLIANT SPRING DISPLAY MARCH 17, 18, 19

Curtains Go Up Evening Before To Disclose The Most Complete and Up-To-Date Lines of Merchandise Yet Shown.

The merchants of Kingston are going to have a Cooperative Spring Display. Opening days are to be March 17, 18 and 19 and all those who recall the success of the previous Cooperative Spring and Fall Display events exploited by the merchants of the city will look forward to this coming exhibit which will really begin at 7:30 p. m. on March 16. When at a given signal there will be usual unveiling of windows when everybody will be out to view the newest of new creations displayed in the windows of those merchants who are showing their progressiveness by this cooperative movement.

A uniform display card of attractive design is to be furnished to all merchants who participate in the occasion. Not only will the people of Kingston be kept in touch with this movement but extensive announcements will be made in neighboring town papers.

THEATRE TICKET BILL VETOED

Walton-Smith Measure Unconstitutional Finds Governor Miller—Such Tickets an Article of Commerce.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., March 1.—Governor Miller today vetoed the Walton-Smith bill which endeavored to compel theater speculators to charge not more than 50 cents above box office prices for any theater ticket. The governor in vetoing the measure, declared himself satisfied it is unconstitutional. He declares theater tickets are an article of commerce.

"Any attempt by the state, therefore, to regulate the price at which theater tickets may be sold or resold, must be in the exercise of the police power."
"No ground for such exercise of such power has been called to my attention."

against Malla was disposed of at the January term of court, he was ar-
was dismissed. Judge Fowler re-
served decision. Chris J. Flanagan
appeared for Shea.

Francis A. Waters, Jr., convicted of

claimed that the boy on whose com-

the case for Waters and District At-
fine imposed on Waters, which he
paid under protest, was $50.

Was Waters Second Offender.
The appeal taken by Waters from
the judgment of conviction for violation of the traffic law in the city
court of this city on September 5, 1919, for which he was fined $25
was also argued by Mr. Cook for
Waters and District Attorney Traver
for the defendant. Waters claims
he was convicted and sentenced as a

was charged as a second offender,
but that if the judgment of the city
court was erroneous, the county
court should have imposed. Decision was reserved.

Traver for The People.

The Chamber of Commerce, on Record as Favoring Full Consideration of Problem, Probably Will Present Statement to Council Tonight.

The zoning committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet this evening at 7:30.

It is probable that at this meeting a statement will be prepared for submission at the meeting of the council council later in the evening.

Chairman Arthur C. Connelly said this morning with respect to the position of the Chamber of Commerce in regard to zoning:

The movement to consider the desirability of the adoption of a zoning plan in Kingston and the principles and details of the plan, should one be adopted, is of course, still in its early stages.

Believing that zoning is a matter of very great importance and because of the successful experience of many American cities, starting several years ago in New York city and extending until cities smaller than Kingston have adopted some plan of zoning, the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce would be in favor of the creation of a special committee of the common council in order that the zoning problem might receive the full and careful consideration which its importance requires,
and that all people of Kingston may have full opportunity to take part in the consideration of the merits of zoning and of what particular plan of zoning would best serve the needs of Kingston.

Chamber of Commerce would be in
favor of the creation of a special committee of the common council in or-
eration which its importance requires,
and that all people of Kingston may
zoning and of what particular plan
of zoning would best serve the needs of Kingston.

The Chamber of Commerce is at this time on record in favor of a full consideration of the entire problem.

There are many possibilities for misunderstanding in connection with the discussion of zoning. It should perhaps be emphasized that the purpose and extent of zoning is confined to the prevention of future abuses and mistakes and that it is neither advisable or constitutional to attempt to correct mistakes already made.

Zoning in short can have no effect on the present use and occupancy of property. It can, and experience in other cities seems to show that it does, prevent such future use of property as may tend to lessen the value of adjoining property and have an unfavorable effect on the welfare and growth of the city.

Take one example: The adoption of a plan of zoning could not prevent the continued use of a commercial garage already established in a district set apart under a zoning ordinance for strictly residential purposes. It could, however, prevent the establishment in that district of any new commercial garages.

It is hardly appropriate to discuss at this time the merits of zoning.
The Chamber of Commerce is committed only to a position favoring the consideration of the zoning problem.

An evidence, however, of the existence of a very real need for such consideration, it may be of interest that within the last week a man of national reputation has told the Chamber of Commerce that he will establish his residence in Kingston if some effective plan of zoning is adopted.

This is a good example of many cases found in cities having zoning ordinances. The contention is made in such cities that zoning is a great encouragement to the construction of homes because a home builder is assured that the value of his investment will not be largely destroyed by an improper use of adjoining property. This is as well understood that the banks are often willing to increase the percentage of value which they will loan on property protected by the existence of an adequate plan of zoning.

INDEMNITY CONFERENCE HALTED; GERMAN DELEGATES DISMISSED

After Simons Has Spoken For Two Hours Lloyd-George Says
It is Useless To Go On With Generalities—Allies Meet To Decide Course.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, March 1.—German made her counter indemnity proposals to the allies today and they were held unsatisfactory.

Dr. Walter Simons, speaking for the German government at the opening session of the indemnity conference, offered the allies 20,000-000,000 gold marks ($7,500,000,000) to be paid within the next 20 years. But at the same time Dr. Simons contended that Germany already has paid the allies 20,000,000,000 gold marks in reparations, making the total amount offered by Germany 50,000,000,000 gold marks ($12,500,000,000).

London, March 1.—The first session of the great indemnity conference today ended abruptly. The German proposals, which were advanced in answer to the allies' indemnities decision evidently proved unsatisfactory.

After Dr. Walter Simons, German foreign minister, had spoken and read for nearly two hours from a long typewritten statement, Premier Lloyd-George broke into the German delegate's speech, exclaiming:
"You are doing no more than you did in previous statements. If you are going to continue this it is useless going any further."

The conference opened at 11:40 in Lancaster house and ended at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon.

After the initial session the allied statesmen decided to meet at 4 o'clock at Premier Lloyd-George's official residence at 10 Downing street to consider their course of action.

The German delegates repaired to the Savoy Hotel, where they spent the afternoon conferring among themselves.

The details of the German counter proposals were not made public.

The German case, as outlined by Dr. Simons, was later described as merely a reiteration of the generalities contained in his recent speeches on the subject of indemnity. The course adopted by the Germans was said to have strengthened the French policy of "direct action" against Germany to compel payment.

Premier Lloyd-George in dismissing the German envoys said he would notify them later of the results of the allied deliberations at Downing street.

London, March 1.—The greatest financial conference the world has ever known opened here today when the allies met the Germans to discuss Germany's war indemnity which had been set at $55,500,000, 000 in additional 12 percent tax on all German exports.

The United States was not represented.

The Supreme council convened in the gold damask dining room of Lancaster House at 12:30 o'clock to receive the German counter proposals. Dr. Walter Simons, German foreign minister, read a long typewritten statement on general reparations principles and handed to the allied statesmen a printed volume of detailed criticism upon the Brussels decisions.

It was regarded as certain that Premier Lloyd-George as spokesman for the allies, would deliver counter proposals to replace the vague theories contained in the vague volume.

The opening date of the conference was moved up two days. This was made possible by the arrival of Dr. Simons and other important members of the German delegation last night.

German delegates said they had worked till the final hour before the opening of the conference altering details of the German proposals but despite this statement it was reported that the full text had been turned over to the Wolf Bureau and other news distributing agencies and be released when delivered to insure for them world-wide publicity.

Two important dispatches bearing upon the situation had been received upon the eve of the conference. One was that France was moving up guns, troops and artillery to the Rhine front for a march into Germany if the Germans balk at the allied demands; the other was a message from Amsterdam quoting the Dutch newspaper Handelsblad as follows:

"It is learned from an authoritative source that the Germans will agree to complete disarmament in hope of gaining financial concessions from the allies."

STATE INCOME TAX INFORMATION

Taxpayers in Ulster county should file their returns with District Director J. D. P. Hambrook at 518 Broadway, Kingston, N. Y.

Cordial—They caught me to the extent of $500 fine for violation of the Volstead Act, and I also spent $150 for attorneys' fees. Can you call these business expenses?

Answer—No; amounts paid for fines or penalties because of violation of the law or other expenses on this account are not deductible as ordinary and usual business expenses.

Sailor—Uncle Sam sends me tuition money to take an industrial course which I am taking up at night. Do I add these payments to my wages in my return?

Answer—No; this is a compensation received from the United States Government and is not taxable.

Sheriff—There is confusion in my mind as to whether my salary as sheriff is taxable because of the recent ruling of the Attorney General exempting salary of constitutional officers.

Answer—Your salary is taxable. The only county officers exempt are county judges and surrogates elected prior to May 14, 1919.

J. E. G.—Running on the B. & A., I lay over each trip in Beacon. Is there any reason why I cannot take out as business expenses, cost of room rent and meals there, from my wages as engineer?

Answer—You are permitted to deduct such amounts.

Physician—Calls are made by me at request of the Red Cross on some patients. The charges therefore were made and entered in my books against the Red Cross but afterwards cancelled at its request. Do I, or do I not, call these contributions?

Answer—You may deduct these amounts if you reported on an accrual basis. If you report on a cash basis, you may not deduct them as they have not entered into the computation of your income. If the charge was originally made to individuals and then turned over at request of an organization, the amounts are not deductible as they are gifts to the patient.

Curious—Three men have been conducting a personal service corporation for the sale of insurance. Am I correct in understanding that because corporations are not taxed they are not accountable for dividends from this corporation?

Answer—No; dividends from corporations must be included in the gross income reported by a resident taxpayer.

7th Ave.—My store in the summertime is run in New Jersey. Things go slow there. Then I open store in fall in New York. Do I get taxed in New York?

Answer—If you resided in New York State between July 1 and December 31, 1920, you are a resident and taxable on your income from all sources during the whole year.

Gunner—Some of my buddies seem to think that ex-services men are exempt from the State Income Tax for one year following their discharge. What about it?

Answer—No; there is no such provision in the law.

Beane W.—Tell me about (a) $100 for luxury taxes, (b) cost of cementing cracks in the cellar walls, and (c) replacing hot water pipes.

Answer—(a) Deductible. (b) Deductible only in case of business property or residence property which is being rented. (c) Not deductible, because restoration of property.

B. deC.—On the sale of old machinery, I received $1,100. (1) Is this income or capital? (2) A bumper crop did down the sale price of apples. Customers could not pay, but probably will do so in 1921. Is this income for 1920 or 1921?

Answer—(1) If you are taking depreciation on the machinery and the amount received did not exceed its value on January 1, 1919 less depreciation, no income is realized and such transaction involved a return of capital. (2) If reporting on an accrual basis, the value of the account is taxable in 1920. If reporting on a cash basis, the payments are income in the year of receipt.

"The Penalty" At Opera House—Dorothy Dalton At Keany's.

In only three American cities abides the spirit of true romance, a noted author wrote a few years ago, and mentioned San Francisco as first among them. Regarding San Francisco, especially in that period represented in "The Penalty," Gouverneur Morris's work which is appearing at the Opera House the first half of this week, when the underworld of the coast city and no rival in the world, here are pictured the very sites of the revelry and moral abandon that once made France notorious wherever men gathered to talk of cities.

"Thursday matinee and night the stage play, 'A Daughter of the Sun,' a massive scenic production, telling a story of romance and mystery amid picturesque backgrounds, and set to dramatic Hawaiian melodies, introducing native Hawaiian stunts and players and singers and a specially selected cast of artists.

"MAKINGS" DOWN BUT SODA HIGH

War Time Prices Still Prevail at Ice Cream Soda Fountain—While Materials Used Have Dropped in Price, Rent and Labor Are High.

Summer time is coming soon when the young folks' fancy lightly turns to sparkling ice cream sodas, but there is no indication that the war time prices that still prevail will drop. The "makings" are down in price, but sodas still sell at fancy prices.

Those who indulge in ice cream sodas, and their number has been increased somewhat since the country went "dry," in theory if not in fact, know that the ice cream takes up a large part of the glass. The wholesale price of ice cream is 40 cents a quart. In the days before the war the average price was about 35 cents a quart. It will be seen that ice cream has not jumped in proportion to other commodities.

Then there is the carbonated water that is used, and a dealer in it stated today that the carbonated water was selling for the same price today that it did before the war, and that there had not been an advance in the price.

There has been a sharp decline in the price of sugar, while the chocolate, the fruit syrups have declined in price also, but ice cream fountains have been able to keep the prices up to 17 to 23 cents a glass without much protest on the part of the consumer, and war prices prevail at practically all of the soda fountains in the city.

Those who claim to know the reason for the continued high price of summer's favorite beverage say that as long as the "high labor cost and the high rents" continue in force there is not much prospect in the ice cream soda declining to the old familiar price of a dime with a cent war tax, making the total cost 11 cents.

As the matter now stands the question of what makes an ice cream soda high in price is still unanswered to the satisfaction of the consumer.

LLOYD-GEORGE'S GUARD

Elaborate Precautions For Britain's Premier.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, March 1.—In addition to the two Scotland Yard detectives Premier Lloyd George brought over with him from London for the Paris Conference a dozen or so French detectives and police were told off to watch and guard the British Minister. Correspondents, as they entered the Hotel Crillon, headquarters of the British delegation and now famous as the haven of foreign diplomats, were carefully "looked over" any anyone carrying a small package or appearing to have bulky clothes was watched until he left the building.

Lloyd George, when he returned from the Foreign Office where he had been in conference with the allied statesmen, was met at the door of his car by the hotel manager and a French detective and hurriedly accompanied into the hotel and "shot" up the lift at express speed.

A lover of dogs, Premier George, after a conference, noticed a terrier in the hall of the Crillon and on his way to the lift made as if to stroke the animal. He was, however, gently persuaded to get into the lift and could only mutter, "That's a nice doggie."

The Premier himself appeared not to relish the careful watch made about his person and seemed more at ease when able to look out of a window and realize the blessedness of being alone for a few minutes.

CHICAGO NIGHT
LIFE KILLING

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, March 1.—Herbert F. Zeigler, district manager for the Goodspeed Tire Company, was shot and killed at 4:30 o'clock this morning in the apartment of Mrs. Isabelle Orthwein, a divorcee. Mrs. Orthwein confessed, according to police of the Sheffield avenue station, that she shot Zeigler twice when he forced his way into her apartment and attacked her.

Mrs. Orthwein told the police, they declare, that she and Zeigler had been members of a party that had spent the early part of the evening at Green Mill Gardens, a north side cabaret. She quarreled with Zeigler, Mrs. Orthwein told the police, and left the party, returning to her home in the East apartment, one of the most exclusive on the north side. Shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Orthwein is alleged to have said, Zeigler came to the apartment and forced his way through the door. Mrs. Orthwein told the police he struck her and she picked up the gun and shot him twice.

DAUGHTER DIES
AFTER SPANKING

The Poughkeepsie Evening Star states that Coroner John A. Carr and Under Sheriff Harry T. Briggs on Monday began an investigation into the death of Beatrice, the 6-year-old daughter of Nathaniel and Hazel Ingraham of Hyde Park. The girl died suddenly Monday morning, showing on her body fearful bruises which, according to physicians, were caused by a violent spanking, following which it is believed, a powerful liniment was poured on the child's arms and face. Coroner Carr held an autopsy late that afternoon.

Dr. J. M. Cronk was called in that morning to attend the child but he arrived too late. The father stated the child had been taken with convulsions. An investigation showed that the lower part of the body was covered with blisters and the father admitted that he had spanked the child causing the blisters, after which he had applied Sloan's Liniment.

The Ingrahams have lived at Hyde Park but a few months, have gone there from Poughkeepsie where the father is said to have worked on the Central New England Railroad. The father is about 26 years old and his wife a few years his junior. The case was referred to the coroner by Dr. Cronk who had refused to issue a burial permit.

The Rev. A. L. Hughes Issues Call For Mass Meeting Friday.
The Rev. A. L. Hughes, pastor of St. Mark's African M. E. Pastor Hughes calls attention to the fact that on March 5, 1776, the colored race furnished the first martyr to the founding of this nation in the death of Crispus Attucks, who was killed in the Boston massacre. One of the objects is to secure greater opportunities for the negro under the incoming Harding administration.

THE INCREASED COST OF GAS SERVICE

One of the arguments still used against an increased gas rate in Kingston is that "the cost of everything is going down and prices will soon be back to normal."

That may be true of merchandise and the like, but here are the facts concerning the cost of the principal items that go into the manufacture of gas:

When the old rate of $1.15 per thousand cubic feet was established nearly ten years ago, the normal price of gas coal delivered was $3.53 per gross ton and gas oil delivered was 3 1-3c per gallon.

The rate the company sought from the Public Service Commission—30c a thousand higher than was eventually granted, was based on a coal price of $9.22 per net ton delivered and oil at 14 1/2c per gallon, delivered. The cost of gas coal and of gas oil, two of the most important items entering into the manufacture of gas, has not to date materially changed. The percentage increase being 178% for coal and 343% for oil. Labor has gone up over 100% and other expenses accordingly.

The freight charge alone on coal now, amounts to more than the total cost of coal delivered ten years ago.

The result was that the cost of delivering gas is far in excess of the old rate of $1.15 as shown by the company in the recent hearings before the Public Service Commission.

682,894 AUTOS
IN THIS STATE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 1.—With an automobile to every fifteen of its residents, New York state's motor car census, as shown by registration figures, attained a total of 682,894 cars last year, the official figure being announced today by Secretary of State John J. Lyons, revealing an increase equalling and in some types surpassing that of 1919-19. While individual county figures for the year are not yet obtainable for the entire state, preliminary figures show that some counties now have a car to every eight or nine residents.

A total of 224,127 passenger cars were registered in New York state last year, or 77,661 more than in 1919, the increase being 17 per cent. Commercial cars numbered 125,320, or 24,917 over the previous year, the increase being 20 per cent.

The state has 2,564 automobile dealers, 429 more than a year ago. "Used" cars have reached 215,411, an increase of 35,779 for the twelve months. Motorcycles total 29,442, a gain of 1,521.

Of the state's automobile total, nearly one-third are in New York city. Figures given out by Mr. Lyons show the metropolitan area has the 215,762 cars in its five boroughs last year, 149,922 of these being passenger cars, 52,124 being commercial cars and 13,514 motorcycles. There are 1,102 auctioneers licensed in New York city.

POETRY LECTURE BEST YET HEARD

It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that Monday evening's lecture on "Poetry," given by Bruce Bennett at the parlors of the St. James M. E. Church was the best so far in the course of literary lectures being given under the patronage of the Federation of Women's Clubs. During the prologue, as given by Mr. Bennett, he said he wished to personally express his appreciation of the favor granted by the consistency of the First Reformed Church and the trustees of the St. James M. E. Church for their kindness in permitting the lectures to be given in their lecture rooms.

The speaker was convinced—and later convinced those of his audience needing convincing—that more people would like poetry if they were better acquainted with it. Where poetry was in dispute it was usually because an early notion had been obtained that poetry was mostly rhyme and rhythm, whereas poetry has to do with poetic things, with life and love as well.

Kipling was the first poet considered, and Mr. Bennett said he felt sure that his audience liked Kipling because they knew him; had known him for a long time; were interested in his development as a man and author. He is a manly man, who writes on manly subjects in a manly way. Mr. Bennett then read one of Kipling's early poems, "On the Road to Mandalay," then one from his later years, "The Vampire," and finally his "Envoy," showing the marked development in Kipling's writing.

Mr. Bennett also read that beautiful, yes, exquisite poem, "The Wife from Fairyland" by Richard Le Gallienne, and told of this author's idea of poetry as some thought conceived in the mind and heart of a person, thought over, lived over until it finally took form, became organized and finally came to fruition as a poem, such as the one just mentioned.

Again Mr. Bennett felt sure that young people could be interested more keenly in poetry if they were given more narrative poetry to read, and as an illustration he read Alfred Noyes's "The Highwayman." This was considered a true type of that always delightful form of poetry, the ballad. As a further illustration of Le Gallienne's idea of a poem, Mr. Bennett read a beautiful little poem by Mrs. Booth Tarkington, "The Land of Beginning Again."

Love is the inspiration of much real poetry, and "Vera" was read as a homely but delightful illustration. A poem written by what Mr. Bennett styled "A socialist of the better element of socialism," "A Prayer," was read by the lecturer, which seemed to be the one point of interest in the lecture to one Socialist present, who learned from the speaker that the author was Louis Untermeyer.

The lecture was brought to a close with the reading of two of the best war poems, "The Spires of Oxford" by Mrs. Winifred M. Letts, and "Christ in Flanders," author unknown. This last poem, the speaker considered one of those "where only the Master shall praise and only the Master shall blame."

The last of the lectures will be held on March 14, in the lecture room of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, when the subject will be "Barry."

THE GUEST'S STORY.

"When I was out walking along the road this morning," said Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life to the girl and boy who were going adventuring, "I said to myself:—

"'Shall I hurry to the village and get some meat for tomorrow? And then I decided I wouldn't. For we don't need meat for tomorrow, and it would be wasted; whereas, with other things it's different, as you know.'"

The boy and girl nodded their heads, though they didn't know much about food and which kind was more easily wasted than another. They knew about food mostly in a more pleasurable than housekeeping fashion.

"So I thought," continued Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life, "that I would take a walk and see something new, perhaps. One doesn't always want everything the same. And then I saw Mrs. Wood Elf, here, having a breakfast party, and I stayed around when I heard her tell you that I was coming to explain something."

"She did say that, I believe, and she knew that I'd be glad to tell you why sometimes you can take your time and not miss anything, but rather, gain a lot."

"I'm Mrs. Wood Elf's guest, and the guest is going to tell her story:

"May I Have a Drink?"

"You see," Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life continued, "I was a little timid at first. That is why I talked first to Mrs. Wood Elf—did you hear me? I'm sure you did. I do hope you don't think I was rude."

"Oh, no," said the girl. "We are glad to meet you," said the boy, "for we want to meet everyone we can."

"I'll tell you a little family history," said Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life. "By the way, Mrs. Wood Elf, may I have a drink of water? Have you any dew water left?"

"Just a little. I'll get it for you," said Mrs. Wood Elf.

"I hope," said Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life, "that you won't mind a little history. There is nothing in it about kings or queens, and there are no dates to be remembered. It's a very delightful history."

"It sounds rather nice," said the girl.

"And like a quite new kind," said the boy.

"I was afraid that you wouldn't like my name. I was afraid it sounded a bit too preachy and fine—just as though I were going around and saying that I did everything the right way, and so got everything that was useful and beautiful and good."

"Well, that isn't what I mean you to think of me. I am named after my mother and father. My father greatly admired my mother and wanted me to be named after her. My mother admired my father and wanted me to be named after him. So they just named me after both of them."

"What were the names?" asked the boy.

"My father's name was Hurry and my mother's name was Take-Your-Time."

"But your name isn't made up of those names," said the girl.

"Oh, yes it is. You see, my father was always hurrying. He was a great creature for bustling and rushing and doing so much in such a short time."

"My mother, on the other hand, always took her time. She did things very carefully and very well and things thoroughly."

"My father did things very brilliantly and quickly, though sometimes they were done in rather a slap-dash fashion and sometimes my mother's ways were too slow."

"But my mother thought my father's quick, brilliant ways were wonderful, and my father thought my mother's careful, thorough ways were greatly to be envied."

"So I was named after both of them. And now I live up to my name. You see, in our family we're all like our names. It was the same with my grandfather—the oldest grandfather anyone has."

"Grandfather Time?" asked the boy.

"Right," said Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life. "I take after both my parents. I don't want to hurry so fast that I miss everything I pass by. So I hurry and get out so fast as to keep from enjoying things. I'm not contented to say this as it is all because of my wonderful father and mother."

"They gave me these combined gifts."

Up to Mrs. Smith.

Jack was visiting a neighbor who always had a supply of home-made cookies on hand. She gave him one, which he ate, and Jack asked for a recipe to bring to his mother. When he reached home he said: "Mother, Mrs. Smith said she was sorry but there was a bit out of your cookie."

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

CORONER PROBING CARMEN'S DEATH

An investigation was begun this afternoon of the death of Antonio Carmen at his home about two and one-half miles west of Milton on Sunday as the result of blows said to have been inflicted when he was held up one night last week. Up to this afternoon the case had not been reported to the sheriff's or district attorney's office or to Coroner George Suter of Marlborough, but it is said that one of the constables of the town of Marlborough received a report regarding the hold-up last week but took no action.

The home of Carmen is not easily accessible. According to the story told about Milton on Monday after it had been learned that Carmen was dead, he was found unconscious in a snowbank alongside the road one night last week. Milton people did not know what night he had been found. From his appearance it was evident that he had been beaten on the head and allowed to lie where he had fallen in the snow.

Whether robbery furnished the motive for the assault is not known, but it is said in Milton that he usually carried a considerable amount of money with him and had a large amount on his person when he was last seen in Milton. He was then on his way home.

Upon learning of the matter this morning Coroner Suter began an investigation. District Attorney Traver communicated with him as soon as he learned of the case, and this afternoon Coroner Suter and Coroner Suter in the investigation.

CHARITY BALL RECEIPTS.

About $1,700 Will Be Available For The Needy.

At a regular meeting of the Kingston Assembly No. 275, Knights of Columbus, held Monday evening at the K. of C. Home, the chairman of the different committees on the recent charity ball reported.

The ball was a huge success, both socially and financially. The Knights wish to sincerely thank the public and all who in any way helped to make this affair the success it was. The receipts were announced as $1,700. There are a number of tickets still outstanding, which the Knights expect will add to this amount. There are also some bills against this amount that have not as yet been rendered. It is urged that they be sent in at once as the Knights wish to know exactly the amount that they will have for charity this year. The Knights listened to a very nice address by the Rev. Dean Hickey, on "Coordinated Charity," which was very much appreciated.

Paris, March 1.—Announcement was made at the Foreign Office this afternoon that official advisers had received from Heisingfors confirming reports of disorders at Petrograd and Moscow.

Hygienic Sleeping Rooms.

A sun-bath, at frequent intervals, is effective in keeping the bedding healthy, sweet and wholesome. To this is added, of course, daily airing of the bed-clothes for not less than two hours. Elderdown quilts, though tempting to the eye of the housewife, are not as hygienic a covering as the more easily washed woolen blankets. As at least a third of our lives is spent in the bedroom it behooves us to see that it is clean, airy and hygienic, otherwise refreshing sleep will be impossible and health will suffer.

Money Needs Fresh Air.

But for money and the need of it there would not be half the friendship in the world. It is powerful for good if divinely used. Give it plenty of air and it is sweet as the hawthorn; shut it up and it cankers and breeds perma.

—George Macdonald.

Woodland School House Party.

Woodland school at Phenicia has just had a delightful week end winter house party. The guests, Misses Helen Boyd, Julia Burgerie, Betty Barrroughs, Dorothy Dwyer, Janet Fowler, Charlotte Kennedy, Betty Pearlall, Annette Sleeper and Charlotte Wheeler, were entertained by Edward G. Applegate, Frank De Kira Huyler, Charles Imbarria, Philip L. Miller, Frederick G. Street, Jr., William Trayna, Jr., and Francis Whitaker. From the time of their arrival Friday afternoon until their departure Sunday afternoon, girls and boys alike were thoroughly busy. Moonlight skating, hockey, snowshoeing, skiing, counting and the dance until the stroke of twelve Saturday night, crowded the hours in a way never to be forgotten by the young people. All voted the skiing the chief event of the winter sports. The boys and their athletic instructor gave an exhibition of ski jumping. Sunday morning out of doors and the regular Sunday service at the school filled the morning Sunday. After dinner the ballad side of the whole party to Phenicia station concluded the affair.

Louiseville Surprise Party.

On Saturday evening last the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Arnold gave Mr. Arnold a surprise party at his home in Louisville. The time was pleasantly spent with music, games and dancing and at 12 o'clock, beautiful refreshments were served. The games departed in the evening, leaving Mr. and Mrs. Arnold very much surprised and all saying they wanted for such a good time there again in the near future. Mr. Arnold was very much surprised to be taken to supper at home at 7:30 o'clock. As he walked to the dining room he found a nice little gathering of neighbors playing cards. Led by hand kept on until 10:30. Some were fortunate enough to have a check ride, others with aces and eights, others with 10 to 10. These prizes were given to Mr. and Mrs. Louise Arnold, Mrs. R. B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Harding.

Judge's Black Cap.

In older days, the legal profession was mainly composed of clerics. As the clergy were not allowed to take life on any account, a difficulty arose when it came to pronouncing the death sentence. It was caused by several the tresses—that shaven skulls at the crown of the head which was considered the token of priesthood—with a black cloth just before passing sentence, thus signifying that for the moment the judge was a layman and not a priest. As in other cases, now, when the reason for a custom itself has long since died out, the custom itself lives on. Hence in this day a black cap—which, by the way, is not shaped like a cap but is an ordinary square piece of black cloth—is placed on the judge's head just before the fatal words are spoken.

Japan Water Witches.

The particular form of magic to which the Japs claim has to do with water. With a bowl of flowers, a sword, a fan, and two Japanese boys, a conjurer in Japan can produce "cup" fountain. First, with a wave of his hand, from the blade of the sword spurts forth a leaping fount of water, from the Japs' another spout of water, and from the top of the head of one boy there springs another fountain, and so on. On being handed a cup and saucer, the wizard puts them before him, and with a wave of his hand, the water in the cup is changed into a fountain. The

200 FAIR ST.FAVOR NEW YORK FOR BIG FIGHT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 1.—The evening contest over the probable site of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight was renewed today.With Tex Rickard ready to play the role of the lone promoter and the Brady-Cochran transfer papers properly signed the naming of a location for the contest is the one remaining point of interest. Rickard has thirty days in which to select a site. He hopes to be able to make the election, however, within a fortnight.One thing seems sure since Rickard has taken over the bout—it will not go abroad. The peer of promoters wants to stage it right here in New York if possible. As the date has been definitely set as July 2, Havana is eliminated. The July brand of weather in Cuba is too torrid for any pair of gladiators.Benton Harbor, Mich., has been recently given consideration as a site by the promoter. Rickard also has the offer of the Canadian syndicate to fall back on and New Jersey is very much in the running and will continue to remain so for a while, even though the limit of rounds in the "skeeter" state is an even dozen.Close friends of the promoter hinted today that with boxing in good favor at Albany and no dangerous opposition to the bout being staged here in sight at present, Gotham will get it. It is altogether probable, too, that it will be staged under conditions that will eliminate serious objection—that a considerable percentage of the receipts may be directed into charitable channels.

for one of honesty, and appeal to the members to stick to the straight and narrow path on leaving that instituinstitution and time in prisons in all parts of the world. Since reformating she has made almost $1,000,000 in ed for many minutes. Then they sang

"Oh, What a Pal was Sophie." night of terror with the sound of bombs and sniping rolling through this morning and shot to death in a railway tunnel. The killing was done by three men, all masked and heavily armed.The shooting and bombing at Cork broke out in the burned area of the city at 7 o'clock. A number of
